VIII. ADDITIONAL INFORMATION OR EXPLANATIONS. (Indicate part of report.)

In connection with the items listed in Part VII. Investments and Trusts, please note that each of those items (except #4 and 5) are retirement accounts. As to Item #1, I have been advised by a New York State Retirement Service representative that, since I severed service with New York State more than 7 years ago, my pension contribution is no longer kept in an interest bearing account as I have not made any new contributions to the account since termination of service. As a result, no interest is being generated. However, having turned 65 in 2020, I began taking pension retirement distributions in the form of a monthly payment. As to Item #2, the New York City Deferred Compensation Account, which is similar to the Federal Thrift Savings Account (notably, this federal account need not be reported), the statements I receive do not indicate income from any dividend, interest, or capital gain. Instead, the statements indicate an increase in value resulting only from the change in market value of assets, and, thus, are not reportable. See the Financial Disclosure Report Filing Instructions for Judicial Officers and Federal Employees, Commentary at pp. 32, 40. Revised February 2017. I have not yet begun taking any distributions from this account. As to Item #3: The ETRADE IRA was well under $1,000.00 in total value in 2021 and the interest was less than $1 for the end of calendar year 2021. As to Item #4 - HSBC Checking Account - I have had this account open for a number of years but for every previous year that I had to submit an FDR the year-end balance was below $5,000 and, thus, below the reporting requirement. The interest earned has been and remains well below $200 (closer to $1.00). The end of calendar year 2020 was the first time that I had a balance greater than the $5,000 reporting requirment, which is why it is being reported herein.
