VIII. Additional Information or Explanations

	ADDITIONAL INFORMATION OR EXPLANATION
1.	As to the accounts delineated in Part VII, Nos. 7-18, they are all portions of two 401(k) and 457(b) (Horizon) plans in which I enrolled while a state court judge over 20 years ago. All of them consist of funds where a manager selects various stocks and other investment vehicles into which the collective monies of the fund are placed. When an employee elects to direct a portion of his or her earnings into said fund, he or she receives a number of "shares" equal to the amount invested at the current price of a share in said fund. During any periods of time, the price of the shares may go up or down. When the employee exits the plan and/or otherwise sells the shares, there is potentially "income" cognizable at that point. However, during the periods when the employee leaves the shares in the account, the funds do not credit income to the individual accounts, but instead report a "unit value" to participants and there is no calculation or delineation of income to the employee in that situation and the employee is not informed of the transactions engaged in by the fundâ??s manager. I contacted the staff for the Committee on Financial Disclosure in 2016, explained the above scenario, and was advised to leave the Part VII(B)(1) column blank and to put the word "none" in Part VII(B)(2).
